AMEGY BANK SERVES HOUSTON'S EAST END AT COMMUNITY FAMILY CENTERS

HOUSTON (June 28, 2019) — On Friday, June 21, approximately 15 Amegy Bank colleagues – including banker development program summer interns – braved the June heat and spent the day outside volunteering at Community Family Centers' (CFC) food fair. They distributed food to more than 400 families.

Every Friday, rain or shine, CFC provides emergency food assistance for individuals and families in crisis in Houston's East End. CFC's food fair serves approximately 300-400 families each week and passes out approximately 2,000 pounds of food that is delivered from the Houston Food Bank.

"I really enjoyed our day at CFC," said Jennifer Ashe, Amegy's banker development program coordinator. "These families sat for hours outside in the sun and were still incredibly grateful. They thanked each of us for being there as they walked through the line. It was fun interacting with them, and it also allowed us to gain a little perspective on what things we might be taking for granted."

"The people at CFC put in a lot of work each Friday to provide this food fair. It is a great service and opportunity that they are providing to local families. Their work is truly appreciated by the people who attend the food fair and by people like us who volunteer there."
